Abstract

Three of the most common liver diseases in children are hepatitis B, hepatitis C, and non-alcoholic fatty liver disease (NAFLD). Evidence-based approaches to the management of these disorders are lacking. As a result, there is significant controversy about the optimal methods for management of these disorders. The goal of this conference is to provide a forum for an active and more complete discussion of current management approaches to these important problems in pediatrics. Potential future approaches and the relevance of adult approaches to children will be discussed. Multicenter clinical studies of all of these topics are currently being implemented in the United States, thus new data may be available at the time of this symposium. It is anticipated that the conference will stimulate new clinical approaches and investigations into these pediatric liver diseases.

The screenshot shows the Web of Science interface for a Cited Reference Search. At the top, there are navigation tabs for 'Web of Science', 'InCites', 'Journal Citation Reports', 'Essential Science Indicators', and 'EndNote'. The 'Web of Science' logo is prominent on the left, and 'Clarivate Analytics' is on the right. Below the navigation, there's a 'Search' section with 'My Tools', 'Search History', and 'Marked List' options. A dropdown menu shows 'Web of Science Core Collection' as the selected database. The main search area has tabs for 'Basic Search', 'Cited Reference Search' (which is active), and 'Advanced Search'. Below the tabs, instructions state: 'Find the articles that cite a person's work. Step 1: Enter information about the cited work. Fields are combined with the Boolean AND operator. * Note: Entering the title, volume, issue, or page in combination with other fields may reduce the number of cited reference variants found.' There are three input fields with examples: 'Example: O'Brien C* OR O'Brien C*' (with a dropdown for 'Cited Author'), 'Example: J Comp* Appl* Math*' (with a dropdown for 'Cited Work'), and 'Example: 1913 or 1913-1915' (with a dropdown for 'Cited Year(s)'). Each field has a 'Select from Index' link. A 'Search' button is at the bottom right. A link to 'View our Cited Reference Search tutorial' is on the right side.
